There are 8 billion people lives on our planet, and of course, not all of them are good, honest and kind, but we are all unique.

In my opinion, you should be the person you want to become. I think that changes starts with you. So if you want to make the world a little bit better - be the best version of you. Because when you're polite, friendly and good to people, they will see you as a great person. Be the example for people. Show them your kind acts, words and polite behaviour to others. And maybe, in some time, people will start to change themselves like you.

I met a lot of different persons in my life. Some of them became my friends, and with some of them I stopped communicate because of their acts. When I was a child I had a bestfriend. We always hanged out together, and she was a really good person as I thought. But one day I discovered that my bestfriend didn't keep my secrets and said bad words about me behind my back. So I decided to break out our friendship.

We met a lot of people in our life. Not all of them can be honest and kind to you, so you should be careful. But you always should be the best version of you, because changes starts with you.
